

ÜBERBADGER

UberBadger.com's Mission

To be the #1 community store featuring moderated collaboratively designed & fun board gaming accessory items and to give back to the community it serves by disbursing sales profits to those that contribute.

Collaborative Process

Uberbadger encourages everyone to contribute ideas to the community store. Submissions to Uberbadger can take many forms and you don't need to be an artist to participate. From just a few lines of text forming your idea, Uberbadger will compose the artwork, assign it to the products, and offer it for sale in the store. It requires little work on your part but the spark of an idea and a PayPal account for us to use when depositing your profits.

Uberbadger can accept just about any form of electronic submission but simple text is often the most efficient way to state your idea and to supply surrounding context that will help us compose the idea and to assign appropriate artwork when necessary.

Unfortunately, submitted ideas are not guaranteed to become products. Uberbadger exists to make a profit and sadly, some ideas just won't sell or don't fit into the product lines already established at Uberbadger. But don't fret! Try another idea. Maybe you'll hit it big with your next one.

All submissions should be made to the following email address:

submissions@uberbadger.com

Rights & Ownership

- Uberbadger makes the final decision on what does and what does not become a product.
- The original submitter retains all rights to their submitted ideas (and artwork if included in the final form of the product artwork) and by submission, they are granting Uberbadger the rights to compose the idea into a suitable form for inclusion on products in the store.
- The original submitter may, at any time, direct Uberbadger to remove one or more of their products from the store and to cease and desist all sales. At that time, Uberbadger will delete the electronically composed artwork from its servers.
- Uberbadger will not provide the submitter with the electronic form of the product artwork.

Donations & Disbursements

Each sale at Uberbadger results in a payment (donation) of 3% of the profit to Board Game Geek, LLC. After the 3% payment, Uberbadger and the original submitter each receive 50% of the remaining amount. As a guide, a single CafePress T-Shirt sale results in about $3-$4 USD in profit.

Uberbadger disburses profits via Paypal.com on a monthly basis. $10 is the minimum amount that will be transferred. Smaller amounts will be held until subsequent months.

Due to IRS regulations concerning the issuance of 1099's, $599 is the maximum amount that Uberbadger will disburse to a single individual on an annual basis. Contact the sales@uberbadger.com to discuss larger disbursement levels and the tax implications.

CafePress retains sales profits until the product has been received by the customer, they've had the product for 30 days, and have not returned it. Once this occurs, the sales profits are cleared for disbursement to Uberbadger at the next monthly boundary. Uberbadger will not disburse funds that it has not received from CafePress. As a result, there will be a lag time from the point of sale and the time that Uberbadger frees up the funds to disburse to submitters. However, Uberbadger will provide all submitters with sales reports on a monthly basis for you to track what you are due.

Advertising

Uberbadger encourages all submitters to advertise. The more customers you can drive to the store the more sales you will generate for everyone involved in the store.

Board Game Geek

Uberbadger will post periodic Geeklists and forum entries at Board Game Geek. These Geeklists are intended to advertise the store and its products, announce new designs, and the make a call for new submissions. We encourage you to participate in these postings to generate buzz in the community for your designs.
